

Geoeconomics of Irregular Warfare: Iran and the Global Ripple Effects â?? Part V

Description

In Part Five of Irregular Warfare Initiativeâ??s special series examining the unfolding conflict with Iran, Hamlet Yousef (IWI Economic & Legal Warfare Advisor), Ioannis Koskinas (CEO, Hoplite Group), Tom Johansmeyer (Co-Director, IWI Economic & Legal Warfare Group), and Ed Bogan (Founder, Institute for the Study of States of Exception) examine the evolving geoeconomic dimensions of the conflict and the broader ripple effects shaping global markets and strategic competition. Moderated by Jackie Giunta of Irregular Warfare Initiativeâ??s Engagements team, the discussion explores how economic signalsâ??from energy markets to supply chainsâ??are increasingly intertwined with operational realities, and how market reactions are shaping perception as much as policy.

As the conversation unfolds, the panel moves beyond headline-driven analysis to examine deeper structural dynamics, including the economics of asymmetric warfare, the sustainability of cost imposition strategies, and the growing interconnectedness of conflicts across regions. For those seeking to better understand how economic pressure, perception, and global competition are converging, this session offers a grounded and forward-looking perspective.
